Wabtec Secures Multiple Pantograph Orders in India

BANGALORE – March 13, 2026 — Wabtec Corporation (NYSE: WAB) today announced it has secured multiple contracts to supply more than 680 pantographs for six major commuter rail and metro projects across India. The advanced pantograph systems will improve overall fleet availability for the projects providing more reliable, efficient, and sustainable rail operations.

Under these contracts, Wabtec will supply pantograph systems for Chennai Metro Phase II, Mumbai Metro Lines 4, 5, and 6, Indian Railways' MEMU (Mainline Electric Multiple Unit) and Vande Bharat Sleeper programs. Wabtec will manufacture the systems at its state-of-the-art Transit facility in Hosur, Tamil Nadu, with deliveries scheduled to begin in late 2026.

"India continues to make substantial investments in modernizing and expanding its commuter rail infrastructure," said Ajay Mani, Managing Director, Wabtec Transit India (FTRTIPL). "These orders underscore the trust our customers place in Wabtec and our longstanding commitment to the country's rail ecosystem. Our proven pantograph technology is designed for modern mobility needs and capable of operating in even the most demanding service conditions."

Wabtec's pantograph technology features lightweight, high-stiffness frames and optimized linkages that ensure stable current collection across varying speeds and overhead equipment conditions. Precision-controlled contact force, aerodynamic collector heads, and low-wear carbon strips help reduce arcing and wire wear, improving power-collection efficiency. The pantographs are equipped with advanced damping for consistent performance. The systems meet EN and IEC international rail standards and offer a rugged, low-maintenance solution ideal for India's rapidly growing electrified network.

These contracts represent a significant business milestone for Wabtec and reinforce the company's long-term partnerships with leading car builders, system integrators, and national railway programs.
